Monday Music Memo 26 – 18 September 2023

Ok, the Italian composers were a bit of a challenge.
Here is a laugh instead, which might excite our poetry group.

Limericks of the musical kind!

Johann Sebastian Bach (1685-1750)

Johann made a Fugue of an Art
He always knew just where to start
He offered a riddle
That stopped in the middle
So Frederick could write the last part

George Frideric Handel (1685-1759)

There once was a Hessian from Halle
Whose “Water” could soothe a koala
But oh what a scandal
If George Friedrich Handel
Had sung “The Messiah” for Allah

Ludwig van Beethoven (1770-1827)

There’s a crafty composer from Bonn
Creating from dusk until dawn
Symphonic productions
And joyful eruptions
Well after his hearing was gone

Franz Liszt (1811-1886)

There’s a prominent pianist Liszt
Who tickled the keys with a twist
Astounding his peers
He garnered their cheers
While insisting it’s all in the wrist
